

Photo Release

Photos are a great way to document learning and communicate with parents what is happening in the classroom. Each year the playschool likes to display photos on bulletin boards to promote a sense of classroom community. The teachers also often create year end books as a keepsake for the students.

Here at OCLP we also use an app called "KLASSLY" where instructors post photos to inform parents of events and activities happening in the classroom. These photos are a great opportunity to use as conversation starters with your child about the things happening in their class.

In addition to those uses, we have occasional need for images to use for promotional purposes such as our website or open house. Images used will not contain identifying information, i.e., child's name.

Please indicate below your preference:

- I hereby give permission for digital and photo images of my child, captured at Ottewell Community League Playschool class and events, to be used for Klassly, year books and bulletin boards.

- I hereby give permission for digital and photo images of my child, captured at Ottewell Community League Playschool class and events, to be used for Playschool promotional material and publications such as website and advertisements.

- I refuse consent.
